Black Diamond Video Introduces BDV Clarity™ Trauma View

Point Richmond, California, July 6, 2015 – Black Diamond Video, a technology leader in operating room integration and recently acquired by STERIS Corporation, today announced the launch of BDV Clarity™ Trauma View for continuous trauma bay monitoring and recording.

Black Diamond Video's Trauma View allows multiple video sources to be continuously recorded, capturing room and ceiling cameras, patient vitals, and hemodynamics. Each trauma case is captured, day and night, and the recordings are automatically archived to hospital file storage for later secure review.

"BDV's Trauma View illustrates our unique commitment to delivering solutions for real-world issues in today's trauma centers," said Devon Bream, Vice President of Global Medical Sales and Marketing at Black Diamond Video. "We join Trauma View's recording and simultaneous 24-hour playback capabilities with activity graphs, paging system integration, and more to enhance trauma care and workflow."

Trauma View is the latest addition to Black Diamond Video's BDV Clarity™, a portfolio of enterprise-wide software solutions for enhancing workflow efficiency, communication and collaboration within the operating room and beyond.
